He will spend 12 months in Serbia, in organization „Living together” that provides support and help to people with developmental disabilities and their families. During his stay volunteer is actively involved in working with people with developmental disabilities in different types of activities: educational activities, recreational activities, work activities, cultural activities etc. The volunteer is also involved in project development and encouraged to develop his own activities or projects. His special task is to work on Youth in action project – Youth exchange for persons with developmental disabilities. Important part of his activities is focused on sharing experiences and getting to know the other culture. Besides his daily work in Day centre, the volunteer is working on a theme together with other volunteers from Serbia about the way of life of disabled people in Europe. The volunteer has an opportunity to learn Serbian language well and in that way enrich his experiences and knowledge. The main aim of the project is to allow the volunteer to express his personal commitment and to experience strong sense of contributing to local community and making lives of individuals with developmental disabilities better and more fulfilled. For a volunteer this will be a true learning experience.  |

The main goal of this project is to open a space for debate, learning and exchange of experiences on discrimination and gender based violence amongst youth since this subject is still addressed so passively in many societies. This Training seeks to develop the knowledge and skills of the participants to understand the theme of discrimination and gender violence at the same time developing the communication skills of participants in solving risk situations through verbal and non verbal communication. Participants will learn how to address these problems and to create impact and motivation in young populations. Also, they will learn how to involve them in an assertive, efficient and effective way. With skills in communication and the expressive arts workshops as tools, participants will have at its disposal a range of new capabilities to implement their projects and to involve youth in fight against discrimination and gender based violence. We will hold several workshops related to verbal and non-verbal communication and expression of feelings through various performing arts. All the subjects and art performances should be gathered together in the end and guidelines and a movie should be created to show the evolution and the results of this training. In addition, participants will have the chance to meet other cultures, to exchange experiences, creating, this way an enlarged network of contacts that can develop synergies and cooperation between organizations with the aim to integrate the learned intercultural perspectives in their work.   |

It does so by gathering 36 youth workers active, or wishing to become active, in the field of supporting self-employment of youth, i.e. youth entrepreneurship, and allowing them to invest into their personal capacities for supporting youth self-employment, forming of cross-border cooperation partnerships and raising pro-activeness of their organizations in youth entrepreneurship field, to a new, higher level. The youth workers mentioned will have an opportunity to participate in a 7-day training to be held in Leskovac, Serbia. All of the measures will, at the end benefit young people without jobs and particularly those youngsters with fewer opportunities facing major economic obstacles, especially in the current time of global economic crisis and high levels of youth unemployment. The training will gather participants from 6 countries: Serbia, Macedonia, Bosnia-Herzegovina, Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary. Our organization believes that one of positive solutions to youth unemployment problem is entrepreneurship empowerment of youngsters, because today's youth needs a creative and independent thinking about business and their future employment prospects. In that sense, self-employment needs to be more seriously considered by youngsters, as well as by those providing, or wishing to provide, youth with services in the area, as viable income-   |

These stories give moral basis, distinction between right and wrong. However, these stories teach about inequality between genders and they tend to spread cultural stereotypes (black, Roma, Jewish). These verbal stereotypes are followed by illustrations that support other kind of stereotypes. Libero will host Seminar "Once upon a time-Fairy tales without prejudice" will gather 32 young people from 4 countries to discuss about hidden prejudice and stereotypes that these stories carry. Main aim of this project is to promote cultural diversity and fight against stereotypes. Objectives of this project are:- to analyze fairy tales for main messages they send to children and young people- to discuss prejudice and stereotypes and their impact on society- to raise awareness on importance of stories in shaping young minds- to discuss about fairy tales as way to fight against discrimination and promote equality- to promote cultural diversity and intercultural learning by creating stories aiming to educate youth about equality- to exchange experience between young people about stereotypes they are receiving from childhood and later in education about different minority groups in their countries. During 8 days the main working method will be non-formal education. Within programme we will stress out the importance of cultural diversity and mutual understanding. We will work on different aspects that create prejudices and stereotypes, written fairy tales, visualization and theatricalization. Participants will have task to choose national stories that they believe spread most prejudices and to present it to others. They will analyze tales and identify main prejudices and stereotypes in order to re-create them. Output of the seminar will be booklet with fairy tales free of prejudices and stereotypes. To include young people with disabilities, follow up of this project will be creation of audio material for blind kids. |

As organisations that actively promote the international/regional mobility of young people, especially with the opportunities offered by Youth in Action and traveling invariably by plane, the partners in this project recognise the need to standardise the introduction, in all stages of our projects (planning, implementation and follow up), mechanisms to reduce the environmental impact of our activities. This means on all aspects including travel &amp; transportation, urban mobility, use of resources such as paper, water, electricity and consumption of the food, etc. This training course involving 24 youth leaders from 8 countries, and 8 partner organisations will introduce participants to the concept of Carbon Footprints http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Carbon_footprint how to calculate the Footprint of an activity or action based on the carbon emissions it produces and give ideas and best practices example of how organisations can introduce carbon offsetting into the "budgets" of the activities. In this way the participants will have the capacity when planning future international/local youth activities to measure the overall environmental impact of an activity taking into account the form of travel-international and urban transport, electricity, paper &amp; material, water and food, usage of local products will be especially evaluated. Following this analysis the participants will then be trained to know how to use concrete methods and tools to contribute to sustainability of their projects and organisations in a positive way and so balance the negative impact of the activity creating where possible "zero" carbon footprints for the overall projects. |

Today the world has more than 200 million migrants and this number is increasing. Although we live in an age of greatest human mobility in known history, with recognition that migration is a key of feature of our contemporary world, it is still one of the least understood phenomena of our time. There are different triggers and causes, push and pull factors for migration which affects everyday life of all Europeans. There is forced migration and voluntary migration, different reasons and consequences of migration which have lead to new migration routes. The entire world is affected by migration, and especially young people, who are one of the most mobile groups and the ones who determine how the future world will look like. For this it's important that people working with young people would be aware of the causes, opportunities and consequences of migration and could support both – young emigrants and immigrants by creating opportunities and providing support these young people need. In this project we will talk about migration problem and reason for migration in all the world, but special part of training is reserve for migration problem in Europe. Through non-formal education methods (working groups, icebreakers, energizers, pedagogical games, field visits, debates, brainstorming, plenary sessions with presentations by experts and participants, sharing of knowledge and best practices, world café) and informal moments (thematic evenings), participants will be leaded to "see, judge and act" on the realities surrounding the Migration phenomenon.   |

These participants are youth workers from SEE, Mediterranean & EU countries. The training will gather 24 of them and it will introduce them to a new, creative and innovative technique – Forum Theatre can be used to discuss a variety of important social issues. In this case, the theme of the project is open dialogue between different ethnic, sexual, religious groups. The youth will learn how to utilize Forum Theatre in order to promote mutual understanding in multi-ethnic, social and other surroundings. The objective of the training is to emphasise the importance of fighting social exclusion and discrimination and to show the youth workers how they can do this in an innovative and creative way. Throughout the theatre training this group of multi-ethnic participants will discover the similarities among them and learn how to respect their differences and be more tolerant. Because of that it was taken care to partners be from very different countries. They will also learn to use specific tools and techniques related to forumtheatre. The participants will also work on developing their own capacities for creating theatre presentations/performances and they will be shown how to lead the process with the audience after these presentations/performances and how to actively engage the audience in order to reach out to more diverse and wider target groups. Also they will be motivated to use Youthpass certificates. Aside from the training activities, the training course will include free time activities such as a city tour, meeting with local NGOs, intercultural evenings and other activities aimed at facilitating intercultural learning and tolerance building. Through this TC 24 participants will be empowered and motivated to take initiatives on the European level dealing with issues of exclusion of different vulnerably groups.             |

The training will be organised by Izvor mladosti which is also a hosting organisation of the project. The participants are 32 youth workers, youth leaders actively working in youth organisations from Serbia, Latvia, Albania, Bulgaria, Macedonia, Slovenia, Greece and Moldova. The training course will deal with youth entrepreneurship and volunteerism as a tool for fighting rising youth unemployment, fostering social inclusion and cohesion. Non-formal education (workshops, simulations, discussions, debates etc) will be used to encourage participants to create a think-tank of ideas how to boost youth entrepreneurial spirit and convert them into projects. The objectives are: to look at the reality how different European and SEE countries fight with youth unemployment, gain skills and tools how to use voluntary experience as a cut-edge advantage at the labour market, raise awareness of the potentials of youth entrepreneurship as a tool for self-employment and contributor to social inclusion and cohesion, share real life experiences and good practices with international colleagues, bring a clear view on the possibilities in Youth in Action programme in volunteering and youth employment, establish new partnerships and cooperation for the improvement of quality in international youth work, develop project ideas into concrete plans. It is expected to assist individuals to develop their skills by experiencing activities in a safe and friendly atmosphere in workshop so that they can apply skills gained in their organisations and act as multipliers in the broad community. Also a presentation by a young entrepreneur will be held followed by questions. Since the training will take place in a community where different nations live together, it will be used to gain intercultural and interpersonal skills by coming in direct contact with the locals. |

Secondly, we want young people to understand that through active participation in local community (volunteering in cultural centres, initiating and participating in workshops and debates) they can gain new skills, understand the added value of lifelong learning and develop flexibility, thus gain crucial skills and attitudes for faster and more successful entrance to the labour market. 54 participants from 10 Programme and Neighbouring partner countries will meet in Belgrade and engage in 6 different workshops that will use non-formal learning methods to develop the social and personal skills of participants in an artistic way. Our third objective is to show them the value of taking initiative, which can help them to make effective career choices, perhaps by joining long-term volunteering programmes such as EVS. Our target is to have at least 40% of participating young people coming from less opportunities background, the most vulnerable groups within the unemployed youth. The exchange will promote volunteering, intercultural awareness and social skills, using the techniques of learning by doing, peer-learning, personal goal-setting and cooperative problem-solving. During the exchange we will analyze the factors and share good practices that can increase active participation and employability of youth, and will look for creative ways to send our message to others as well. Using cultural activities and youth media productions is a great way to inform, motivate and engage youngsters with fewer opportunities, as well as to empower them to get their voice heard by the stakeholders thus creating way to more cohesive society.  |

The Exchange supports the Alliance in implementing its Accessing Policy regarding an inclusive voluntary service- by 2013 to use 10% of places in volunteer exchanges (out of 18 000/year) for young people with fewer opportunities. The main objective is to bring together people from different countries, social backgrounds and with different abilities, building an environment of mutual understanding, tolerance and solidarity, in order to trigger their personal development through practicing their active role in social life. A set of sport, cultural and artistic activities is planned that will stimulate interaction, intercultural learning, self-reflection and understanding of delicate concepts of diversity among the international participants. Not only we want to send a message against discrimination, but we wish to point out that no society is rich enough to dismiss and leave out a part of its population.
